Boston Stars.

You will miss a rare treat by not seeing and hearing the "Boston Stars" at Kelly's opera house on next Tuesday evening. The Exter Gazette of this company says:

"As we predicted, the concert by the 'Boston Stars' was a great treat, and we unhesitatingly say no concert company on the road is its equal. Their name is well suited to these artists, for they are stars. Mrs. Moberg, Henson-Emerison, and her selections, showing the effective powers of her beautiful voice to excellent advantage. Nella Brown of course pleased, and she is the finest lady singer on the country to-day. Walter Emerson, as usual, delighted all; no other person in this country can excel him on the cornet. Rudolf King rendered two solos as well as could be expected on an upright piano, and admirably assisted as the accompanist. All were compelled to acknowledge the heavy encores accorded at each selection. Those who were not present do not know what they miss."

Tickets are now on sale at J. C. Bloom's Indian cigar store.

Cheap money can be had by calling on W. S. Pagan, office First national bank building.

She Wanted to Vote.

"Are this year's voters?" inquired an old Irish woman of the registration clerk last Friday.

"It is," was the polite reply.

"It is, eh? Well, just for me, I'm down there, for O'm gold, to vote."

"Are you married?"

"It's married O'm, and if you want to know, but I'm a man, boy. O' that's worth his burial. Shure an' O've shupporied him this year, and O' don't see what they didn't leave me vote long ago in his place."

"But he can vote too."

"O'm, he kin, but Yous might allow him to, but O'll be damned if I do. If O've got to support the insurrection, O'm gold to him and asseck the prerogative, an' he sin't by a long sight."

So the politicians will lose one good vote at the coming election unless they can sneak him out unbeknown to her.

THEY SAY

That the people will be at the polls and work on next Tuesday.

That the slight opposition raised against R. W. Evans for mayor has about faded away.

That there will be an independent candidate for councilman in the 2nd ward.

That the race for councilman in the different wards promises to be very close.

That James McCurdy ought to have been nominated for constable, at the mass convention.

That arrangements should soon be made to start the street sprinkling wagon.

That Judges Whitelaw and Sutton filled the places of first vice presidents at the mass convention in that superb style peculiar only to themselves.

That it was a "scooner" for the opposing faction to see the leading business men of our city setting on the stage at the mass convention with our next mayor in the center.

That H. M. Wright makes a splendid chairman.

That Col. Jones, paid $10 for a 50 cent watch, and the jewelry man that sold it was glad enough to make him a present of $2.00.

That J. M. Lloyd was the choice of the people at the mass convention.

That Judge Beverley will carry off the office of City Treasurer by a majority of 500.

That there is no such thing as getting something for nothing, but just go to Hallett's 10-cent store, opposite the Times office, and see.

That out of the 801 registered, R. W. Evans will get over 600.

That McKinney's voting strength in the First ward is just 4.

That the mass convention on Saturday evening knocked out all the hopes the West party had of electing any one.

That Col. Jones made a short but elegant speech at the mass convention. He wore his high hat.

That the independent candidates are doing some excellent work.

That Mr. J. H. Swift's boom for mayor might be said to have "died aborning."

That Capt. Finley's style, when taking the chair at the 2nd ward caucus, was elegant and his address on "an economical government and reform" was way above the general average of speakers.

College Exhibition.

The closing exercises of the second term of this year, were held last evening in the Presbyterian church. The time coming so near to press time renders us unable to speak of these exercises as we would wish to do. Suffice it to say the program was of the most excellent character, and most successfully carried out, reflecting credit upon both instructors and students. The exercises consisted of reading, recitations, declamations and songs of welcome, with songs, duets and quartets. A loose lot of interested and intelligent people gave evidence of the appreciation in which this noble enterprise is held. The singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by Prof. Rowelson in carrying forward this year against so many difficulties should merit the commendations of the whole people, and elicit the most favorable support in their future work.

President Wright announced the opening of the third term of Tuesday, April 2, 1899, and tendered his heart felt thanks to students and patrons, and all for their faithful and zealous standing by the institution, and giving aid and cheer to the faculty. He appealed to the citizens to use all efforts to put the rebuilding in such condition as would enable the presbytery to efficiently do its work.

The following is the program of the Sunday School concert, at the Baptist church, March 31:
